[42] Locality and Direction. Right: tonsil swollen, with pain; pain in side of neck.
Left: severe pain in orbital region; soreness and pricking in side of throat; crampy pains in ovary; cannot lie upon side; pain from heart to scapula; severe pain in temple and ovarian regions.

[43] Sensations. Pain as from needles in tonsil; as if there was a hair in larynx; as though a hot iron had been run into it; as if heart and ovary were drawn up together; pain as from a weight in vertex; as if heart was screwed together.
Pain: in head; in spine; in upper part of back; in throat; in r. side of neck; in heart; about heart to nape of neck; l. shoulder and arm.
Agonizing pain: in head.
Acute pain: in chest.
Severe pain: in l. orbital region; in l. temple, cardiac and ovarian regions.
Sharp pain: in r. tonsil.
Severe stitching pains: in region of heart.
Neuralgic pain: in head; in ovary.
Crampy pains: in l. ovary.
Aching: around orbit, increased to throbbing, and thence it was drawing in character to back of head.
Dull shoots: up occiput.
Pressive pain: of stomach; in vertex.
Smarting pain: in back.
Dull pain: in head.
Peculiar burning: of exhaustion.
Soreness: in l. side of throat; of stomach.
Pricking: on l. side of throat.
Raw feeling: in upper part of trachea; of throat; in larynx.
Depression and lowness: about heart.

Dragging and anxiety: at præcordia.
Tired feeling: in cervical and dorsal vertebræ.
Pressure: in throat.
Weight and pressure: at vertex.
Heaviness: over eyes.
Dull, heavy constriction: across forehead.
Constrictive sensation: in cardiac region.
Choking sensation.
Uneasy dryness: of fauces.
Dryness: of throat; of fauces; of mouth.

[44] Tissues. Acts primarily upon nervous system, especially upon respiratory nerves, the pneumogastric and glossopharyngeal.

[45] Touch. Passive Motion. Injuries. Touch: larynx tender.
Riding in a carriage: considerable pain in heart.

[47] Stages of Life, Constitution. Woman, æt. 20; cerebrospinal meningitis.
Miss, æt. 26, fair, florid, nervous, sanguine; angina.
Man, æt. 27, dark, bilious temperament; chronic headaches.
Man, æt. 32, baker, eight years ago suffered from obstinate articular rheumatism, six years ago had syphilis; affection of heart.
Woman, æt. 32, feeble, nervous, suffering several years; neuralgia in head.
Woman, æt. 35, mother of four children, has frequently aborted, brother and sister died of consumption, she herself having been homœopathically cured of the disease, a slight dyspnœa only remaining; angina pectoris.
Woman, æt. 50, suffering about a year; irritability of heart.
Woman, æt. 56, catamenia ceased eight years ago, since then suffering; headaches.
Woman, æt. 60; headache.

NATRUM ARSENICATUM.

Sodium Arseniate. $Na_3AsO_4\,12H_2O$.

The arsenious acid becomes, during the process of preparation, converted into arsenic acid.

Introduced by Gourbeyre, who made proving with 6th trit. (L'Art Med., vol. 17, p. 440, 1863); more extensive provings were made by members of the Hom. Mat. Med. Club of Allegheny Co., Pa., Buffum, 30th and 3d dec.; Chapman, 30th and 12th; Crawford, 30th; King, 30th, 15th and tincture; Martin, 30th, 15th and 6th; Miller, 30th and 15th; Ramage, tincture; Shannon, tincture; Thomson, tincture (Hah. Mo., 1876); four provings (Hah. Mo., vol. 13, p. 599).

[17] Scrobiculum and Stomach. Sinking sensation in epigastrium, with dull feeling in supraorbital and frontal regions.
Extreme tenderness in epigastric region.
Epigastrium tender, < just below ensiform.
Stomach feels sore, warm things cause a sensation of burning and can be felt entering stomach; moderate dinner lies heavy; feeling of fulness.
‖Hæmatemesis.

[19] Abdomen. Pain from time to time, shifting through bowels; < by escape of gas or passage of feces.
Gas forms rapidly, < only when bowels move, colic from flatus and before stool.

[20] Stool and Rectum. Stool: thin, soft, dark, followed by burning at anus; yellowish, watery; copious, painless; hurries him out of bed in morning, preceded by colic, relieved after; weak and nervous, hands tremble.
Alternate relaxation and constipation.

[21] Urinary Organs. Dull aching in kidneys.
Sore feeling in region of bladder, < urinating.
Urine: copious, frequent, clear; heat precipitates phosphates; contains a few epithelial scales, a cast, fat globules.

[23] Female Sexual Organs. Dull cutting along Poupart's ligaments, followed by sickening sensation in l. testicle as from a blow, testicle very sensitive while pain lasts.

[25] Voice and Larynx. Trachea and Bronchia. Mucus scanty, dark, slate colored and detached with difficulty.
Roughness-causing hemming, with spasmodic cough.
During morning irritation in bronchi, with slight cough.

[26] Respiration. ‖Lungs feel as though smoke had been inhaled.
Respiratory sound very indistinct, especially in lower lobes; percussion normal.
‖Miner's asthma produced by inhalation of coal dust; pneumonia and consumption.

[27] Cough. Teasing dry cough through day.
‖Dry cough, with feeling of tightness and oppression in middle and upper third of chest.
Dry, hacking cough from an uneasy feeling and soreness beneath cartilages to right of fourth and fifth ribs, < from exertion.

[28] Inner Chest and Lungs. Lungs feel full and clogged, < behind sternum and from larynx to epigastrium.
Feeling of fulness, oppression and soreness, < during exertion and on full inspiration.
Sharp, quick pain below seventh rib, anteriorly.
Supraclavicular regions sore on pressure.

Google

‖Dry cough, with an oppressed feeling of chest; short, dry cough without expectoration; lungs feel as though smoke had been inhaled; nose dry and obstructed; patient feels stuffed up. θCatarrhal affection.

‖Woman confined to bed with advanced tuberculosis, hectic, few night sweats, amphoric respiration, emaciation, pulse 128, respirations 40, cough racking, expectoration greenish and profuse; mental symptoms of bluest remorse.

‖Hæmoptysis.

[20] Heart, Pulse and Circulation. Can feel heart beat through chest distinctly.

‖Oppression about heart on least exertion. θDiphtheria.

Sounds heard through nearly every part of chest.

Pulse: irregular, variable in volume, slower than usual.

[31] Neck and Back. Neck stiff and sore.

Severe pain between scapulæ; he inclines forward for relief; < from inspiration, it passes gradually around in front to ninth and tenth ribs.

Soreness at lower cervical vertebræ down to joints of and under both scapulæ.

[32] Upper Limbs. Neuralgic pains from axilla to little finger.

Rheumatic aching in r. arm, < in shoulder and wrist.

Light, flying pains in fingers, palms and forearm.

[33] Lower Limbs. Lower limbs feel heavy; weary feeling from ilium down outer side of thighs to knees, as from too much exertion; bruised feeling along l. crural nerve, < from continued motion.

Aching anteriorly down legs, until restless, uneasy feeling is produced.

Pains shooting from acetabulum to knee, < moving about.

Pain, cramp-like, at junction of heads of gastrocnemius muscle, extending downwards.

Cramp in plantar surface of r. foot.

[34] Limbs in General. Neuralgic pains recur frequently.

Joints feel stiff; pains erratic, < in joints and on l. side.

[35] Rest. Position. Motion. Inclines forward for relief: from severe pain between scapulæ.

Cannot sit still without great effort; restless.

Stooping: headache <.

Motion: jars head; of jaw, painful; continued, bruised feeling along l. crural nerve <; pains from acetabulum to knee <.

Least exertion: oppression about heart; soreness beneath cartilages, r. of fourth and fifth rib, <; feeling of fulness, oppression and soreness <.

[36] Nerves. Restless, nervous, cannot sit still without great effort.

Digitized by Google

Feels tired all over; desire to remain quiet.

[37] Sleep. Drowsy, heavy.
Restless sleep, when aroused awakes nervously as in affright.

[38] Time. Morning: dull aching in frontal region; eye symptoms <; lids agglutinated; nose stopped up; dry cough <; face swollen, œdematous; fauces dry; throat symptoms <; stools hurry him out of bed.
Day: severe pain in frontal region; teasing dry cough.
Night: nose stopped up, must breathe with mouth open; chilly.

[39] Temperature and Weather. Heat: headache <.
Disposed to wrap up, or get near fire.
Warm from exercise: itching of eruption <.
Warm things: cause a sensation of burning in stomach.
Open air: smarting and lachrymation of eyes.
Cold drinks: nausea <.
Cold: congestion of conjunctiva from least exposure; hawking up of mucus <; sensitive to air.
Wind: congestion of conjunctiva from least exposure.

[40] Fever. Chilly, disposed to wrap up or get near fire.
Chilly at night, then burning dry heat, skin hot and dry.
‖Surface cool, covered with cold, clammy sweat. θDiphtheria.
⁝Intermittent fever.

Left: sickening sensation in testicle; bruised feeling along crural nerve; pains in limbs < on side.
Pains show preference for l. leg.
From without inward: boring pains in temples.

[43] Sensations. As if something was impending; as if lids must be closed to protect weak eyes; eyes smart as if from wood smoke; malar bones as if swollen; as if something lodged in throat; as if a pin was sticking in throat; as of a lump in throat; sickening sensation as from a blow in l. testicle; as though smoke had been inhaled into lungs; awakes nervously as in affright.

NATRUM SULFURICUM.

Sodium Sulphate; Glauber Salts. $Na\ OSO_3 + 10Aq.$

Since its discovery by Glauber, in 1658 (de natura salium), it was called Sal Mirabile by himself, and afterwards Sal Glauberi. It has been used as a laxative in so-called inflammatory affections, or employed as a purgative (Comp. Pereira, ed. by Carson). The Chinese use it for the same purpose, according to Scherzer (Austrian Expedition). It is rarely given in smaller doses, largely diluted, as an aperient and diuretic (American Dispensatory). It was proved in still smaller doses by Dr. Schreter, in Lemberg, Galicia; the proving published in 1832, in Hartlaub's Annalen, vol. 111, No. 4, and by the zealous and meritorious Nenning in Bohemia, by himself, and several women and girls, published in 1833, in the same journal, vol. 4, No. 4.

In Grauvogl's works, Grundgesetze, 1858, Das Homöopathische Aehnlichkeitsgesetz, 1861, Diätetik und Prophylaxis, 1862, Lehrbuch der Homöopathie, 1866, it is recommended as a polychrest in the "hydrogenoid constitution," Sycosis, Leucæmia and Thrombosis.

Long before this it had been used in the 30th centesimal to prevent the development of some forms of consumption by Hering, was given in important cases of sickness by Jeanes, in abdominal disorders and chronic diarrhœa by Lippe, and in the second potency with prompt result in some forms of sciatica by Raue and Hering, according to symptoms of Nenning.

For complete collection of symptoms see Hering's Monograph, Am. Jour. Hom. Mat. Med.

Sulphate of soda is contained in a great many springs, used and abused as medicines. It predominates in the warm springs of Karlsbad (Sprudel), of Bristol (hot well), and in the cold springs of the Isle of Wight, and of Püllna, Saidschütz, Marienbad, Bilin, and Franzensbad, in Bohemia.—CHg.

Introduced by Schreter, proved by him and Nenning (Hartlaub and Trink's Annalen, vol. 4, p. 487), Lembke (N. Zeit. für Hom. Klinik, 1866, vol. 11, p. 97).

NUX VOMICA.

Poison Nut. Loganiaceæ.

The seeds of Strychnos Nux Vomica; a tree native to Hindostan and the East Indies.

The alcoholic tincture is prepared from the finely pulverized seed.

Introduced by Hahnemann and proved upon himself, his son Frederick, Stapf, Wahle and Flaeming. Later provings by Robinson, Berridge and Wilson, with high potencies.

PALLADIUM.

Palladium. Pd.

A metal accompanying Platina and Aurum.

Proposed as a remedy as early as 1833. See Stapf's Archives.

"This metal belongs with Mercury, Silver, Gold, Platina, and others occurring in small quantities, like Iridium, Rhodium, Ruthenium, and the very remarkable Osmium, to the so-called precious metals; that is, such as are reducible by themselves, more easily separable from oxygen than the others, but having greater affinity for Sulphur. If we classify the Sulphides according to their solubility in dilute acids, Palladium must be placed with Argentum, Rhodium, Ruthenium and Osmium, and Platina remains with the less soluble Mercury, Aurum and Iridium. The nature of solubility in dilute acids one would expect would show itself in the provings. Platina and Palladium both proved in dust form showed such similarity in their effects that the question arose whether corresponding differences might be found. These data can only be furnished by frequent use of Palladium in practice."—C. Hg., N. A. J. H., vol. 9, new series, p. 129.

percussion sound on l. side posteriorly; in front, less dull; bronchial breathing through l., mucous rattling of large bubbles in r. chest; livid color of face; lips and tongue dry, with a sooty coating; skin burning hot and brittle; pulse very frequent, weak and suppressible; breathing quick and short; dry, hard cough; frequent diarrhœic stools.

‖Expectoration of dirty appearance, resembling fur, but thinner, when falling on any hard, smooth surface, will break and fly like thin batter. θPneumonia.

‖Infantile pneumonia: feverish, irritable; respiration hurried; cries on taking a deep breath; small crepitating râles in bases of lungs posteriorly.

‖Typhoid pneumonia; not a genuine inflammation, rather an accumulation of blood in veins and extravasation of fluid blood in lung tissues; weakness, feeble pulse, occasional sighing, unable to use lungs, not from pain, but merely from weakness and hyperæmic stagnation; pulse thready; cold sweat.

‖On seventh to ninth day of pneumonia, breath cold; cold, clammy sweats; fluttering, scarcely perceptible pulse; sputa rust-colored, expectorated with difficulty; great anxiety; hippocratic face; both sides of chest dull on percussion.

‖On sixth day of disease, severe suffocative attack; respiration very difficult; voice weak, lisping; great prostration; pulse rapid, weak; hepatization of r. lung. θPneumonia.

‖Threatened paralysis of lungs at an early stage of pneumonia in old people who previously were asthmatic or suffered from chronic mucorrhœa.

Respiratory organs become rapidly involved and lungs rapidly suppurate, with formation of cavities and purulent exudation into cavity of thorax, with infiltration of mesenteric glands and tubercular ulcers in intestines; tubercles of lungs develop, with hectic fever.

‖Lobular pneumonia, terminating in gangrene of lung and pyohæmia.

‖‖Tuberculosis: incipient stage.

‖Emaciation, easily fatigued; face pale; cheeks sunken; severe cough, copious, yellow expectoration; chest sore, as if eviscerated; fever; night sweats. θConsumption.

‖In second and third stage of phthisis; hoarseness; aphonia; hæmoptysis; salty, purulent expectoration; soreness in chest; great irritability of sexual organs.

‖Phthisis pulm. seu abdom., face pale or cheeks red; bowels loose; stools bloody or contain lumps like tallow; flashes of heat with debility; weak knees.

‖Tuberculosis in tall, slender, weak-chested persons growing rapidly; repeated hæmoptysis; great debility; frequent attacks of bronchitis.

‖Œdema pulmonum.

‖Pleuritis; late stages; heart dilated; purulent infiltration.

‖Threatened paralysis of lungs, prostration, viscid sweat; small pulse; face sunken; rattling in windpipe.

Heart, Pulse and Circulation. ‖‖Palpitation: violent; on slight motion; frequent and violent while lying on l. side, at night; and anxiety in evening and morning, on waking, in bed; severe with præcordial anguish; from every emotion; with rush of blood to chest, especially in rapidly growing youths; with cramp between scapulæ; of nervous origin; in anæmia with tightness across chest; dyspnœa and nervous weakness.

‖‖Violent hammering in chest, aggravated by motion, benumbing all over; dyspnœa, tightness across chest, great weakness after any little mental excitement.

‖‖Anxiety about heart associated with nausea and a peculiar sensation of hunger, somewhat relieved by eating, distressing her even in bed, sometimes for several hours.

‖Pressive sensation about heart.

‖‖Pressing pain < under sternum. θAngina pectoris.

‖Great pressure on middle of sternum; orthopnœa; dyspnœa with inability to exert himself; palpitation

‖‖Frequent stitching, pinching pains, pressure and anxiety; sensation as if heart had grown fast; as of a narrow band encircling body and lying upon heart; violent throbbing and beating of heart; extending up into throat and head; numbness, stiffness and coldness of l. arm and thigh; great anxiety of mind as if he had committed murder, allowing no rest day or night, preventing him even from lying down; respiration short, oppressed, wheezing, difficult; pulse full, hard, frequent; heaviness of head with vertigo, roaring in ears and darkness before eyes; at night chilliness with stretching of back and legs; when pains in heart cease suffers from stitches in chest with sudden orthopnœa or has tearing, cramping pains and retraction of testicles or cramps in calves of legs.

‖‖Pressure as of a great weight lying on middle of sternum; great pressure in upper part of chest; cough excited by drinking; excoriation of chest when coughing; cough wakes him constantly at night and excites great pain in breast; impossible to lie on back; has had two previous attacks; since first has short breath and cough, inability to exert himself, palpitation, depression arising ‖Impulse of a whirring character; first sound of heart at apex is blowing, the second clear; systolic murmur at orifice of heart.

‖Bruit de souffle with first sound of heart.

‖Peculiar blowing sound, synchronous with systole of heart, over arch of aorta.

‖Marked bellows' murmur with first sound of heart.

▮Endocarditis or myocarditis during course of acute inflammatory rheumatism or during pneumonia.

▮Disease of r. heart with consequent venous stagnation.

‖R. heart considerably enlarged; superior thirds of both lungs, notably l., consolidated; constant tickling at throat pit, causing desire to cough, which, however, only resulted in a little white, frothy sputa being raised with a hacking which made his chest more sore; liver enlarged downward about two inches, but not sensitive to touch; shortness of breathing upon least exertion, together with tumultuous beating of heart; sensation of constriction across chest; soreness to touch of l. subclavicular space; says life has become a burden as he can get no restful sleep; sleeps for a short time, during which he constantly tosses about, then awakens feeling sore and tired all over and must get up and sit in a chair a few minutes, then to bed again, and this all night; food does not seem to agree, except salt fish, which he does not like; has an all-gone feeling, becoming < as digestion proceeds and which is somewhat > after a meal.

‖Retardation of heart's beats owing probably to fatty heart; pulse gradually fell to 20 and death seemed imminent; in an old man aged 70.

▮Hypertrophy of l. ventricle with congestion to head and face; dilatation of r. ventricle; fatty degeneration of heart; emphysema; bronchial catarrh.

▮Dilatation of heart, following endocarditis, or fatty degeneration.

‖Muscular angina with fatty degeneration.

▮Fatty degeneration of r. heart; venous stagnation; puffiness of face, particularly under eyelids.

▮Pulse: accelerated, full and hard; sometimes double; small, weak and frequent; irregular; feeble; small compressible, 80; small and soft; rapid and weak; rapid, soft; intermittent, from dyspepsia.

Spinal anæmia in those given to sexual excesses; tall, lean people; night sweats with hectic fever; early morning diarrhœa.

Pain in back and weakness of legs, gradually increasing until locomotion became extremely difficult and he was compelled to stay in bed; on endeavoring to walk, very peculiar motion of legs, they are bent and unsteady and are moved forward as if it were an effort for him to support spinal column; formication and numbness in lower half of spinal column; spinous processes very prominent; trembling of limbs; torpidity of alimentary canal.

Myelitis; after sexual excesses or getting wet; also when in connection with an inflammatory process of vertebræ; burning pain in spine; some vertebræ sore to touch; dyspnœa and cough; weakness of sight; transient vertigo; constipation, stools narrow, dry; numbness and insensibility of extremities.

Softening of spine.

Progressive spinal paralysis, with partial contraction of affected muscles, formication and tearing in limbs, anæsthesia with increased heat; periodically returning, insupportable pains in spine, preventing walking; heaviness and sensation of fatigue, especially when ascending steps; pains in soles of feet as if she had walked too much, with sensation as if they were asleep; great irritability and nervousness.

Locomotor ataxia: burning heat in back; hands and feet numb, clumsy; limbs tremble from every exertion; when walking makes missteps from weakness; swelling of hands and feet with stinging pains; paralysis, formication and tearing in limbs; anæsthesia; increased heat; sexual irritation; nocturnal emissions; great irritability and nervousness; from excessive loss of animal fluids and semen.

Multiple sclerosis: weakness of extremities and trembling on making an effort; legs weak, gait tottering as if he were not sure of himself; speech embarrassed; amaurosis with widely dilated pupils; deafness.

Caries of vertebræ: in scrofulous children; diarrhœa < in morning, containing undigested food; tendency to involvement of lungs; catches cold easily with marked tendency to bronchitis; when inflammation has ex-

Unsteady, stumbling gait.

Paralysis of lower extremities; unable to move limbs which were of low temperature and sensibility; back very stiff; at a certain part of sacrum no sensibility; frequent tearing and formication from back to legs.

Paralysis after spondylitis; use of lower extremities suddenly and completely lost; cannot move a step; on wishing to change position of legs must use hands, as if legs were made of wood.

An attack of lumbago, three years ago, was followed by pain in r. pelvic region; loss of feeling and motion of limb; no shrinking of limb; sensation like creeping of ants in limb.

Acute arthritis with paralytic weakness of thighs and inability to flex knees to any extent.

Drawing, tensive pains, from slightest exposure to cold, with vertigo, oppression and sense of lameness and weakness in lower limbs. θMuscular rheumatism.

Exceedingly troublesome nightly attacks of fidgets in r. leg and hip, soon after retiring, preventing sleep and driving him out of bed many times.

Swelling on upper part of r. thigh, near groin, looking like a boil, surrounded by smaller swellings; each of the largest swellings had a scab upon it, which, when picked off, showed a purple or bluish-red surface beneath; after squeezing it it opened like a cauliflower, edges being everted; it was elliptical, nearly two inches long and more than an inch wide, and projected about one-fourth of an inch, of dark purple hue; the dressing when removed was found to be full of blood, no pus; extremely sensitive to touch, contact of sponge caused fainting; fine pricking pain, like that of a needle, < from motion; around this were several prominences about size of half a small pea, purplish on their tops, and looking as if ready to break out as the first one had. θFungus hæmatodes.

Tumor on r. thigh near trochanter, round in shape, base being about size of fist; tumor hard, elastic, slightly movable at base, with but little pain or heat; no pulsations; at most pendant portion an abscess had formed and opened, from which there was a continuous discharge of venous blood, which when wiped away allowed the texture of the fungus hæmatodes to be distinctly seen; blood oozed out in drops and at times trickled away in a stream; great weakness from loss of blood; on l. thigh in same location a smaller tumor had formed, which felt like an indurated gland and was less movable; irritability of mind, with fear and anxiety. θFungus hæmatodes.

Nerves. Oversensitiveness of all senses; oversensitive to external impressions, light, odors, noises, touch, etc.

Great languor and disinclination to move; heaviness in whole body; great weariness; prostration; exhausted after a walk; remarkably weak and depressed, without slightest desire to attend to ordinary business; weakness so great that patient could hardly speak; general nervous exhaustion; inexpressible heaviness of whole body, so that every motion was difficult and unpleasant; desired to keep bed and dreaded motion.

Feeling of weakness in back as if crushed, followed by weakness of extremities and trembling after least exertion; both lower limbs so feeble that he was only able to stagger for a moment or two with a trembling step; when attempting to stand knees shook and gave way; hands and arms trembled when he attempted to use them.

After urinating in morning is so weak he has to lie down.

Exhaustion: especially in chest; of mind and body, in morning; sudden attacks; from loss of vital fluids; with increased susceptibility to external impressions; with irritable weakness.

Paralyzed and sick feeling in whole body.

General relaxation of muscular power; when going upstairs muscles of lower extremities seem to refuse to act, so that she was in danger of falling.

Motions involuntary and uncertain, as one attacked with palsy.

Trembling: especially of hands while writing; all over body or in single limbs; with nervous debility.

Nervous debility: from simple weakness to complete paralysis; often in pneumonia, typhus, exanthematic diseases, croup, bronchitis, vitality reaches its lowest ebb, cerebrospinal system is depressed, surface is cold, pulse like a thread, rattling breathing, trembling of whole frame; frequent fainting spells, caused by intemperance; constitution undermined by grief, care or excessive mental exertion; excesses in venery, or onanism.

Frequent fainting: pale, cold; sudden syncope, lying as if lifeless.

Numbness of whole body, accompanied by a pricking sensation.

Gradual loss of strength; coition causes prostration for several days; paretic condition of l. side of body, particularly of limbs, face and tongue less affected, although speech is impaired; movements of limbs unsteady; sensibility not entirely impaired; pain in affected limbs

[1] Mind. | | Uncommon mental activity.

| | During climacteric change, after severe mental suffering (lost three children), palpitation of heart; beats irregular; some three months ago, at time for return of menstruation, was suddenly taken with a feeling of partial faintness, loss of memory, face very red, eyes congested, violent pain all over and through head, constant disposition to talk, which made her cough, feeling as if stomach were full, even up to pit of throat, belching of wind; sensation of heart beating hard and furiously, yet its motion could hardly be discovered, and in a few moments a violent tonic spasm, lasting nearly an hour; every muscle in body rigid, no loss of consciousness; when passing off roaring in ears, great dyspnœa and excessive soreness of muscles of whole body.

| | Constant pain and distress on top of head; feels as if she must lose her mind and become insane or despondent; constant moaning; thinks she is a castaway; insomnia with desire to sleep; terrible thoughts on awaking; fears she is crazy or will certainly lose her mind; weak feeling at stomach; sighing respiration; constipation; stools light-colored; map-tongue. θNervous excitability.

| | Inability to stop thinking with headache.

[3] Inner Head. ||Intolerable pain over both orbits.

||Dull pressing headache for nearly six months; comparatively free from it in morning, on rising, but < from least mental exertion, until at night after retiring it is almost unbearable; with the pain, sleeplessness and inability to stop thinking; in course of an hour or two passes off suddenly, with a sharp, radiating flash of pain, sometimes starting from occiput and passing forward, at other times from before backward.

||Intense painful pressure in vertex and temples; pressure in vertex extending over to occiput; pain so severe must lie down.

||Heavy headache.

||Congestion of brain, with epileptiform attacks.

|Cerebro-spinal meningitis; stage of general tetanic rigidity; retraction of head; severe headache, with great heat in head, flushed face; vomiting when raised up; respiration hurried and irregular; pulse 100; urine scanty.

|Cerebro-spinal meningitis; primary contraction of pupils, secondary dilatation; heart's action tumultuous, feeble and irregular.

[5] Sight and Eyes. |Felt film over eyes and blur; objects mixed; after which dull pain over and between eyes.

|Eyes feel weak.

|Dimness of vision.

made; eleven days after patient instilled some Atrop. and brought on an acute attack of glaucoma, which was overcome by use of Eserine.

‖ Man, æt. 29, received a blow of cane on r. eye; glaucoma followed; Eserine was instilled; recovery complete and permanent.

‖ Lady, æt. 70; on fifth day after a fall became glaucomatous (Eserine).

‖ Lady, æt. 64, suffering from severe neuralgia of supra-orbital nerves, had been treated by Gels., typical symptoms of acute glaucoma were found; Eserine disks caused immediate improvement and in six weeks complete and permanent recovery.

‖ Acute glaucoma in a woman æt. 35, caused by frequent instillation of strong solution of Atrop. for the testing of refraction.

Causes slight twitching of lids, soon followed by contraction of pupils and spasm of ciliary muscle from its action as an irritant to the oculo-motor nerve (antagonistic to Atrop., which causes dilatation of pupil and paralysis of ciliary muscle by paralyzing filaments of third pair).

‖ After a blow upon inferior and outer part of l. eyeball; pupil sluggish, not much dilated; could not see objects clearly beyond a distance of four inches from l. eye and then they seemed too large.

‖ A woman had a cataractous lens dislocated into anterior chamber by a blow on temple two days previously; there were conjunctival irritation, much photophobia and lachrymation, with severe throbbing pain in eye and r. side of head; tension of eyeball increased; lens after some difficulty was removed; during next twenty-four hours tension remained normal and wound tended to heal kindly; on second morning following removal of lens complained greatly of pain, which had kept her awake during night and still continued; upper lid was swollen and œdematous; borders of cut for a space of two or three lines were hazy and infiltrated, a slight stringy and mucous discharge had occurred and tension of eyeball had again increased; a solution of Eserine $\frac{1}{200}$, one drop every two hours, was instilled into eye, and Eserine[a] every two hours prescribed; in the course of twenty-four hours the tendency to sloughing had ceased, and a rapid recovery followed.

‖ Prolapsus of iris: from injuries even when whole globe is vascular and irritated and sight impaired; from sloughing of cornea.

PHYTOLACCA.

Poke Root. Phytolaccaceæ.

This plant is indigenous to North America and grows abundantly in all parts of the United States. It is also found in the north of Africa and south of Europe.

The fresh root is chopped and pounded to a pulp; from this is made the alcoholic tincture.

Provings by Burt, Fellows, Marshall, Hale's New Remedies, Cooley, Hom. Med. Soc., N. Y., 1870; toxicological reports are numerous. See Hering's Monograph.

' Mind. Weakness or loss of memory; unable to find the proper word.

Slow of perception; intellectual torpor; gradually increasing apathy.

Google

Anxiety, with restlessness and yawning.
Gloom alternates with excitement.
Much depression of spirits, especially with colic.
Quiet and melancholic mood.
Indifference and somnolence, with lamentations about difficulty of breathing and headache.
Deep melancholy, with timidity and restlessness; anxiety at heart, with sighing and trembling; dislikes to talk or work; maniacal rage, with cries and convulsions; absence of mind; stupidity; pale, miserable, cachectic appearance; somnolency; colic.
Wild delirium with distorted countenance.
Delirium, alternating with colic; bites and strikes at those near him; tremor of head and hands; yellow mucus collects about mouth and teeth.
Delirium furious at night, milder by day, with hallucinations and sleeplessness at night and sopor by day; tremulousness mostly in head and hands; face red or straw-colored, with mucus in mouth, black teeth, fetid odor; grinds teeth; eyes swollen, or look is suddenly changed, as if frightened; throws off bedclothes; loss of all senses; delirium increases as senses diminish; puffing of cheeks, especially if paralysis is a sequel or is caused by suppressed colic, with bloated abdomen.
Sudden fainting on going from one room to another full of company, with screams, fright without cause, spasms in muscles of face, but mind remains sound.
Thought his life was in danger from assassination or poison and that every one about him was a murderer.
Insomnia, severe headache, occipital or frontal, with or without vertigo; noises in ears; disordered vision; diplopia; amaurosis; contraction of pharynx, though liquids are swallowed in gulps and greedily; mind weak, morose and sad; preceded by albuminous urine.
Great depression of spirits; though habitually very temperate had recourse to various stimulants, at first in moderation and openly, but soon immoderately and by stealth; sleeplessness; gloom; despair of her salvation; moody taciturnity; fixed idea that she could only obtain peace and safety through absolution from a priest of the Papal Church, although she had been a zealous Protestant; face nearly of a leaden hue; perpetual movement of lips, as of one smoking, accompanied by a slight sound; very silent, but when spoken to answered rationally; severe pain, starting up from back into head, as if something were working at top of head, with a sense of screwing from behind forward; some flatulence; frequent drowsiness by day, sleeplessness by night; profound melancholy and frequent sighs; brooded over any forbidden thing; would steal from house in servant's cloak and bonnet to obtain stimulants, but from the moment their prohibition was withdrawn ceased to have any desire for them; after being permitted to visit a priest and converse with him ceased to talk and think of the Church.

Mental disturbance of eight or ten years' duration in a man addicted to masturbation; has several times attempted suicide; has been in seclusion; greatest dejection and despair; fixed, moody look, with a constant scowl; believes himself lost; has the sounds of hell constantly in his ears; hears voices and sees shadows of demons; great disposition to make away with himself, or do himself some bodily injury; gloom and taciturnity alternate with frantic delirium; drowsy sometimes in day, sleepless at night; constant pain and weight in upper part of neck and back of head; complexion dark; violent palpitation of heart, < after eating and lying on l. side; pulse weak; bowels regular but evacuations very dark; seminal emissions very frequent, often occurring during stool; testes wasted; spasmodic stricture; gooseskin.

Affections more of the emotions than the intellect.

Sensorium. Sopor after spasms; coma; stertorous breathing, with jaws fixed; motion with mouth as if smoking; puffing of cheeks.

Apoplexy; consciousness blunted; memory deficient; speech impeded, single syllables are omitted or cannot be combined into words; mimic spasms of face while speaking; trembling of tongue when put out; semiparalysis of buccinator muscles and of velum palatinum manifested by violent snoring; sleeplessness; fear of death; organs of sense torpid and insensible; eyes principally affected; eyelids droop as if paralyzed; pupils constantly dilated; all objects seem smaller and farther removed from focus of vision, they may be seen as through a gauze; diplopia; pulse always slow, 50 to 60, sometimes hard and tense like wire; all the muscles may be paralyzed, especially of l. side; paralysis affects equally motor and sentient nerves, is often attended with violent pains in paralyzed parts and considerable contractions, especially of extensor muscles, which feel as hard as wood; in other cases spasms are tonic, and if they reach their full development run into complete epileptic convulsions; muscles of affected parts become atrophied; if paralysis is not complete gait is unsteady, with particular tendency to fall forward; paralyzed respiratory muscles often occasion a high degree of dyspnœa; sphincters scarcely ever paralyzed.

‖Stupefaction of head; he falls down unconscious.
‖Stupefaction with somnolence.
Vertigo: on stooping; when looking upward; > in open air; epileptic.

Inner Head. ‖Heaviness in head, especially in cerebellum.
‖Headache: violent; frontal; pulling and pressive, chronic in forehead, < from mental labor and intolerable in large company; in temples, < in r.; as if a ball were rising from throat into brain; with vomiting and violent pains in umbilical region.
‖Sick-headache, with pain in occiput, umbilical colic and bilious vomiting; yellow skin, especially of face.
‖Chronic dull headaches, with depressed spirits and constipation.
‖Congestion of blood to head, with heat and beating in it.
‖Paralysis occurring early; cerebro-spinal meningitis.
‖Meningitis, chronic, when paralyzed parts soon fall away in flesh; limbs become painfully contracted; frequent spells of colic with retraction of abdomen.
‖Cerebro-spinal meningitis, with early paralysis.
‖Chronic encephalitis and myelitis.
‖Sclerosis of brain, or progressive muscular atrophy, alternating with colic and constipation.

Outer Head. ‖Violent pains in integuments of skull, from occiput to forehead.
‖Great dryness of hair, it falls off even in beard and eyebrows.

Sight and Eyes. ‖Diplopia.
‖Cloudiness before eyes, inducing one to rest them.
‖Dimness of vision, especially on r. side; sudden loss of sight or transient amaurosis and deafness complicating motor palsy in some cases.
‖Neuritis optici; papillæ swollen (examination after death showed interstitial hyperplasia of connective tissue; sheaths of optic nerves were distended by fluid; cerebro-spinal fluid was greatly increased; brain substance anæmic and the gray portion yellowish).
Ophthalmoscopic examination between the paroxysms showed that the disk was prominent, its outline hazy, its color an opaque bluish-white.
‖Left eye affected for two weeks, badly for five or six days; drooping upper lid; intense photophobia; very profuse, hot lachrymation, pericorneal injection, deep bluish-red, marked at corneal margin and fading off towards reflexial fold of conjunctiva; slight redness of conjunctiva of lid, cornea very delicately hazy throughout its entire extent, as if breathed upon so as to dim its lustre; and at lower inner quadrant opacity was a little denser and seemed as if it might develop into an ulcer; cornea not normally sensitive to touch; pupil contracted; vision impaired; tension of eyeball diminished; neuralgic pains in and around eye, < at night; atropine only partially dilated iris.

| | Pupils contracted or dilated.

| Hypopion after iritis, extending up nearly to centre of cornea; nightly tearing pains in eye and forehead; could hardly distinguish day from night.

| Eyeball feels too large.

| Ophthalmia, lachrymation, photophobia, redness of whole ball.

| | Inflammation, varicose distension of vessels of cornea, obscuring light.

| | Passive congestion, with soft large granulations.

| Yellowness of whites of eyes.

| Lids spasmodically contracted.

| Paralysis of upper lids.

[6] Hearing and Ears. | Hardness of hearing; often sudden deafness.

Buzzing in ears.

| | Hears music; with frightful delirium.

| Stitches and tearing in ears.

[7] Smell and Nose. Smell too sensitive or too feeble; even total loss of smell.

| | Loss of smell with epilepsy.

| | Fetid odor before nose.

| Much tough mucus in nose, which can only be discharged through posterior nares.

| Cold nose.

| | Puffiness of nose.

| | Erysipelatous inflammation of nose, mostly in alæ nasi, with redness and vesicles discharging a thick pus when slightly pressed.

[8] Upper Face. | Face expressive of extreme anxiety and suffering; pale, ash-colored; yellow, corpse-like; bloated; cheeks sunken.

| Sallow complexion; discolored sclerotic.

| Swelling of one side of face.

| Skin of face greasy, shining.

| | Vesicles on face and nose.

[9] Lower Face. | | Violent loud motion of lower jaw and frightful grinding of teeth.

| Lockjaw.

| | Tearing in jaws relieved by rubbing them.

| | Lips peel off without pain or dryness.

‖Swelling of submaxillary and sublingual glands.

[10] Teeth and Gums. ‖Grinding of teeth.
‖‖Teeth become black.
‖‖Yellow mucus on teeth.
‖Teeth hollow, decayed, crumbling, smelling offensively.
‖‖Distinct blue line along margin of gums.
‖‖Gums: pale; swollen; show a lead-colored line; blue, purple, or brown; painful, with hard tubercles.

[11] Taste and Tongue. ‖Taste: sweetish; metallic; bitter.
‖Cannot put out his tongue.
‖Tongue: dry, brown, cracked; coated yellow or green; dry, red, glazed, in chronic gastritis; dry and white (colic); red at edge; brown far down centre; inflamed, swollen; heavy, paralyzed; hurts as if bitten.

[12] Inner Mouth. ‖‖Saturnine breath.
‖‖Breath fetid.
‖Dryness of mouth.
‖Accumulation of sweetish saliva in mouth.
‖‖Froth in mouth.
A yellowish mucus in mouth and on teeth.
Saliva increased; of a bluish color.
Salivation, with painful tongue and lips; fetid smell and languor (after abuse of mercury), with yellow purple ulcers on tip of tongue and mouth.
Salivation (mercurial) so profuse in damp weather as to saturate pillow.
‖Aphthæ: dirty looking ulcers and purple blotches in mouth and on tip of tongue.
Ulcers in mouth, with fetid smell; they turn yellow.

[13] Throat. ‖Constriction in throat when trying to swallow, with great urging to do so.
‖Sensation of a plug in throat; globus hystericus.
‖‖Difficult swallowing.
‖Fluids can be swallowed, but solids come back into mouth; burning in œsophagus and stomach some hours after eating. θStricture from spasm.
‖Paralysis of throat with inability to swallow.
‖Tonsils: swollen; inflamed, covered with small, painful abscesses.
‖‖Tonsillitis: going from l. to r., with yellow granulous or follicular ulcers; small and very painful, with burning, stinging pains.
‖Tough mucus in fauces and posterior nares.
‖Angina granulosa, going from l. to right.
‖Angina on l. side, with copious flow of purplish saliva and spasms.
‖Diphtheria, with tendency to sloughing and implication of larynx (also Plumb. iod.).

[16] Appetite, Thirst, Desires, Aversions. Great hunger or complete loss of appetite.

Violent thirst, especially for cold water.

Desire: for cakes; rye bread; tobacco.

[16] Hiccough, Belching, Nausea and Vomiting. Eructations: empty; sweetish; of offensive odor; sour.

Gulping up of sweetish water.

Nausea: frequent; constant; occasional, sometimes followed by vomiting of food.

Vomiting: most distressing; stomach rejecting almost everything; of food; constant, of everything taken; in the night, especially early morning; spasmodic; with violent cardialgia; violent of sweetish, sour, or bitter substance, like white of egg, in chronic gastritis; of grass-green substance, afterwards changing to retching; of a brownish liquid, streaked with blood; of food and of discolored substances, with violent colic; of food, in morning, with great weakness; of greenish and blackish substances; of a blackish substance; stercoraceous.

Vomited matter has a fecal odor.

[17] Scrobiculum and Stomach. Feeling as if a ball ascended from epigastrium along thorax to throat, where it causes a kind of suffocation; at such times can neither speak nor swallow, and suffers the greatest anxiety.

Contraction in œsophagus and stomach; fluids can be swallowed, but solids return; some hours after eating a burning in stomach and œsophagus; constipation; prostration; emaciation.

Heaviness as from a load in stomach, with heaviness in occiput.

Pressure and tightness about stomach.

Severe pain in stomach, radiating to both groins, down both legs, particularly left.

Violent pressure in stomach and pain in back; at times > bending backward, at others bending forward; > from hard pressure.

Pressure in stomach, as from a heavy weight, increasing to a strangling sensation during the severe colicky paroysms and followed by sour and bilious vomiting; loss of appetite; excessive thirst; pains in back > sometimes bending forward, sometimes backward; constipation, hard, knobby stool once a week; taste always sweetish; abdomen compressed hard, like a board; constriction of throat; paralytic weakness in extremities, especially on r. side; hands and feet cold; total and striking want of perspiration; paroxysms increase in severity and duration and she is already atrophied and anæmic. θCardialgia.

‖Constant pressure in epigastrium; severe constricting pain after eating heavy food; rolls about the floor in extremity of pain; attack lasts from ten to twelve hours, at times longer; slight relief when lying down; at times has terrible pains when rising in morning and when stomach is empty; epigastrium hard and swollen during paroxysm; < belching and at night; feces scanty, knotty, hard as a stone, evacuated with difficulty; at times sweetish taste.

‖Periodical pressing, burning and sensation of heaviness in epigastrium, as if everything were weighted down, with general indisposition; whole abdomen felt tense and rough to touch; stool hard, knotty; frequent attacks of shortness of breath without cause; offensive foot sweat since childhood; debility; emaciation; profuse night sweats.

‖Sudden severe pains in epigastrium, compelling her to bend backward and press something hard against abdomen for relief; < from motion; > from belching; after every attack eyes are deeply jaundiced. θGastralgia.

[18] Hypochondria. Hepatic region sensitive to pressure.

Sensation of heat and burning in liver and spine.

Persistent sticking pain in hepatic region, first anteriorly, then posteriorly.

‖Weak and exhausted; skin and white of eyes yellow; urine very yellow; stools light in color; much nausea, particularly in evening or at night, when she vomits her food; restless, sleep broken at night; not able to leave her bed. θPlumbum.

‖Icterus: skin and sclerotica yellow; yellow ulcers in mouth; sweetish risings; abdomen bloated; colic; stinging in region of liver, > from rubbing.

Cirrhosis of liver; first enlarged then contracted.

Spleen enlarged.

[19] Abdomen. A sensation in abdomen at night in bed, which causes her to stretch violently for hours together; feels that she must stretch in every direction; the will to do so alone cannot accomplish it; as if from paralysis; irritation of sentient nerves.

‖Borborygmi; rumbling in abdomen.

‖Drawing pain from abdomen to back.

‖Severe colic, contracted abdomen; bends backward; motor nerves most affected.

Abdomen retracted; hard, painful; pain commenced at umbilicus and radiated to lumbar region and to iliac fossæ; rolled upon ground and pressed abdomen with violence.

Google

Navel seems to adhere to spine and the pain also involves pectoral region.

▮Sensation as if abdominal walls were pulled inward; as if abdomen and back were too close together.

▮▮Severe pains in abdomen, especially around navel, as if bowels were twisted.

▮Excruiating tearing pains in all the bowels, but < at navel.

▮▮Lacerating pains at umbilicus and epigastrium.

▮Intense retraction of the integuments of abdomen towards spine, and a hard, knotty feeling of the muscles in various places over its surface.

▮Extremely violent pains in umbilical region, shooting to other portions of abdomen, somewhat > by pressure; at times they became so violent that he was almost wild, tossed about, pressed fists into abdomen and declared he must go to stool immediately.

▮▮Pain often extended to other regions, to chest, threatening suffocation, to small of back, kidneys, bladder and lower extremities.

▮▮Excessive pain in abdomen, radiating thence to all parts of body.

▮Violent colic; abdomen drawn in, as if by a string, to spine; cutting, contractive pains with restless tossing; > from rubbing or hard pressure; abdomen hard as a stone; knots in recti muscles; anxious, with cold sweat and deathly faintness.

▮Constriction of intestines; navel and anus violently retracted.

▮▮Pain above umbilicus, coming on every forenoon, accompanied by vomiting. θEnteralgia.

▮▮Severe paroxysmal pains in r. side of abdomen, compelling him to bend double, > from pressure of hand, < at night, causing sleeplessness; abdomen slightly bloated; whole r. side sensitive to pressure; stool every second or third day.

▮▮Extremely severe pains in abdomen, recurring periodically, with spasmodic contraction of abdomen and obstinate constipation; hard, knotty elevations here and there over abdomen; intestines as if constricted; pains and cramping of limbs.

▮▮Colic, with hard abdomen, great sensitiveness, relief only obtained by bending body forward and drawing up knees; obstinate constipation; abdominal walls retracted.

‖Abdomen hard as a stone; not very tympanitic; recti muscles drawn into knots nearly as large as a fist; no alvine evacuation for two days, and no urine for eighteen hours; countenance expressive of greatest anxiety; face and forehead bedewed with cold, clammy perspiration; pulse feeble, not very quick; during spasms (every three minutes) vomiting of a blackish, grumous fluid; deathly faintness; body bending backward, so as to form a semicircle, and so sudden as to throw him from bed; pressure from flat hand gave some relief.

‖Colicky pains proceeding from spinal cord, with sensation as of drawing in of abdomen to back, with great depression of spirits.

‖Suffering expression of face; pulse small and frequent; forehead and limbs cold, covered with clammy sweat; constant belching of offensive odor and at times vomiting of fecal-like masses; tearing, burning pains in abdomen, which seem to concentrate around umbilicus; < from touch, motion, and particularly vomiting, which is caused by drinking slightest quantity of water; abdomen bloated; intestines distended with gas, so that they could be traced by finger; extremely sensitive swelling as large as fist, on l. side of umbilicus; great thirst; stool absent.

‖Colic, accompanied on third day by vomiting of ascarides; next day continuous hiccough and offensive belching, with retching, followed at once by vomiting on drinking water; tongue coated; foul taste in mouth; dryness of mouth without thirst; anorexia; no fever; pressing, burning and tearing in abdomen, which was distended; around umbilicus spot as large as fist, sensitive to pressure, from whence the pains, mostly periodical, originated; intestines as if distended with wind, so that course of each could be felt; constant borborygmus; constipation of four days' duration, with frequent ineffectual urging to stool; two days later fecal vomiting; belching of wind of fecal odor. θIntussusception.

‖Distension and hardness of cæcum and ascending colon, whole region swollen, painful to touch, on motion; tongue dry; brown in centre; skin hot and dry; much thirst; nervousness; headache; general depression; expression anxious; feeling of lameness in lower extremities; sour eructations; nausea; inclination to vomit; umbilicus retracted. θTumor cæci.

‖Large, hard swelling in ileo-cæcal region; painful to touch and motion. θTyphlitis.

‖Sensation as if an abscess were forming near umbilicus;

abdominal walls hard and contracted, knotted in certain points. θRheumatism of bowels.

‖Excruciating colic from poisoning with carbonate of lead.

‖Colic, with paralysis of lower extremities.

| |Inflammation, ulceration and gangrene of bowels.

‖Incarcerated hernia.

‖Intussusception, with colic and fecal vomiting.

| |Strangulated femoral hernia, l. side; severe pain; continual vomiting of feculent matter.

| |Strangulated scrotal hernia, r. side.

[20] Stool and Rectum. ‖Diarrhœa: violent; painful; fetid; yellow; bloody, watery, with vomiting and violent colic.

| |Dysentery: with violent colic; in violent cases with bloody masses of exudation; violent fever, cutting in stomach and bowels, burning in anus during discharge and long-lasting tenesmus; spasm of sphincter ani as if drawn in; burning in rectum and perineum.

‖Cholera, severe cases, particularly with spasms of abdominal muscles.

‖Stools: dark, offensive, watery; yellow; mucous and bloody; bloody; profuse, watery; involuntary; fetid, yellow and fecal; watery, with vomiting and violent colic; bloody masses.

| |Stool only once in eight or ten days, of scanty, blackish feces; expulsion of which caused acute suffering.

‖‖Constipated stools: hard, lumpy, like sheep's dung; with urging and terrible pain from constriction or spasm of anus; knotty, feces in form of balls, often hard, black or green; nearly always of a dark color; ball-shaped, hard as a stone; small, hard balls covered with greasy pellicle; large and hard and covered with glairy mucus; dark-colored.

Before stool: ineffectual urging with or without tenesmus; complete atony of rectum; severe coliclike pains with constriction or spasm of anus.

During stool: great effort; violent colic pains.

After stool: colic and at times diarrhœic discharges.

| |Attacks of constipation; enemas of little or no service; stool attended with terrible agony, as bad almost as labor; stools were in hard balls; during worst pain felt a drawing from navel backward to spine.

| |For last three weeks stools which were always rather costive became more scanty and difficult, injections and purges brought away small lumps of healthy-looking feces; abdomen began to swell and increased daily in size until it was as large as that of a woman seven months pregnant; swelling greater on l. side, and completely filled up space between spine and navel; convolutions of bowels filled with hard feces could be distinctly seen and felt; on r. side it felt as if a bag not quite filled with fluid lay there; swelling not very tender to pressure, but prevented her lying upon side; at times very violent, spasmodically contractive, cutting pains with great restlessness, anxiety and cold sweat, whereupon lumps size of fist appeared on l. side; after eating, violent retching and vomiting sometimes of food sometimes of mucus; loss of appetite; tolerably clean tongue; great thirst; flow of urine slightly diminished; skin somewhat shrivelled; weak, pale, emaciated, hollow-eyed.

| | Gradual loss of strength; constant sickness; acid eructations; vomiting of every article of food taken; constant dull pain in hepatic region; violent attacks of enteralgia; constipation, bowels will not act without a purgative, motions hard and dark; numbness of upper and lower extremities; a sort of semi-paralytic condition of arms so that knife would frequently drop from hand; expulsive power of bladder weakened, urine expelled with difficulty and in a dribbling manner; urine high-colored and fetid; sexual functions much weakened; pulse weak and quick; extremely weak and emaciated.

| | Constipation interrupted by an attack of diarrhœa every week or ten days; latter always came on between midnight and morning with great urgency for stool and violent pains in abdomen, > by passage of copious liquid discharge; several discharges would occur during morning, sometimes continuing through day, and then she would be costive again; with diarrhœa, sensation as of something pulling at umbilicus with actual retraction of navel.

▮ Obstinate habitual constipation: when the stools are dry and lumpy and the intestines half paralytic and half crampy; in pregnant women and in persons of a paralytic diathesis, or when due to paralysis of intestines; especially when there are present dryness of the excretions and a muscular atony; often there is an absence of intestinal mucus and bile; when Platina fails.

▮ Alternation of constipation and diarrhœa.

| | Light-colored stools. θ Jaundice.

▮ Impaction of feces.

| | Intolerable pain, from spasms of rectum, with every evacuation lasting an hour or two; suffering described as that of horrible constriction and spasmodic contraction, very much increased if feculent matter is solid;

‖Spasmodic condition of rectum and anus.

‖Anus violently constricted and drawn up; contraction of sphincter.

‖Prolapsus ani with paralysis.

‖Fissures of anus.

[21] Urinary Organs. ‖Must get up two or three times at night to urinate; urine profuse, acid, albuminous, containing fine granular and hyaline casts of small diameter and no renal epithelium; much oppression for breath, making locomotion almost impossible; when walking is seized with severe cramplike pain in region of umbilicus, > standing still; perspires all over as soon as he gets into bed, perspiration comes and goes all through night; cough on first waking, as he gets out of bed continues till after breakfast; is caused by a sensation as if a "wheat-hull" were in throat just behind manubrium sterni; lying on back or r. side brings on cough; when lying on back feels as if fluid rolled from one side of chest to other (subjective); in morning mouth and lips dry and lips swollen; tongue dry; lips crack open when coughing; drinks at night on account of dry mouth; marked weakness; pasty, yellow look; lungs are hepatized and heart diseased. θCirrhotic kidney.

‖General indisposition, loss of appetite, frontal headache, made < by mental application; difficulty of breathing at all times, but especially noticed when lying down at night, causing discomfort and loss of sleep; both ankles highly œdematous; skin dry, does not perspire, even when taking active exercise on a hot day; a slight, dark cloud in urine, settles on standing; urine acid, specific gravity 1016; albumen, $\frac{1}{11}$; finely granular casts and some blood corpuscles.

‖Urine decreased in quantity, red, albuminous, containing blood corpuscles and epithelial cells, crystals of oxalate of lime and hyaline casts; headache in occiput extending to forehead; heavy, œdematous eyelids; sunken eyes, staring look; pains in limbs; emaciation; small, slow pulse; hoarse voice; catarrh of air passages with discharge of tough mucus; dry, short cough; cough with expectoration of blood; constriction and oppression of chest; coated tongue; complete loss of appetite; vomiting; nausea for food; belching; vomiting of mucus; constipation; retention of urine; cramps of bladder; painful urination; urine fiery-red, bloody, albuminous; restless sleep; obstinate sleeplessness; great despondency and indifference. θDesquamative nephritis.

‖Granular degeneration or cirrhosis of kidneys; little dropsy or albuminuria, but a marked tendency to uræmic convulsions.

‖Morbus Brightii: colicky pains; retracted abdomen; cutaneous anæsthesia; albuminuria; rapid emaciation and excessive debility.

‖‖Morbus Brightii, contracted kidney.

‖Diabetes: lowness of spirits, anguish and melancholy; diminution of sight; dryness of mouth; dry, cracked tongue; suppuration of lungs; hectic fever; impotence; dryness and brittleness of skin; emaciation; gangrene.

| |Urine dark-colored, brownish-red, turbid, with flocculent sediment, sp. gr. 1017, acid, albuminous; sediment consisting of a number of red blood corpuscles and a large number of short, rather thick turbid cylinders studded with red blood corpuscles.

| |Albumen gradually diminished in quantity as less lead was found in urine; later, albumen rapidly increased, and there was not an atom of urea in urine, sp. gr. being 1002.

| |Amaurosis and cerebral symptoms appeared and ceased coincidently with the appearance and cessation of albuminuria.

‖Hæmaturia.

| |Complete suppression of urine.

| |Frequent vesical tenesmus: ineffectual urging to urinate; sometimes after much effort, which increases the pains, urine passes in drops.

‖Urine: scanty, high-colored; passed in drops; strangury; will not pass as from atony of bladder; dribbles, is high-colored and fetid; albuminous.

| |Complete paralysis of urinary organs from spinal degeneration.

‖Much trouble with urine in not being able to pass it, apparently from want of sensation to do so; the will to do so cannot affect it, as if from paralysis.

‖Chronic paralysis of sphincter vesicæ.

| |Necrotic inflammation of bladder, caused by a decomposition of urea and formation of carbonate of ammonia, brought on by catheterization and introduction of bacteride germs.

| |Urging to urinate every ten minutes; urine discharged in drops, with extreme pain; burning during and after urination; sensation of constriction behind glans penis after urination; urine at times containing blood; < from motion; > from absolute rest; uses salt to excess. θStrangury.

[22] Male Sexual Organs. ‖Increased sexual desire and violent erections.

‖Slight provocations produce erections and emissions.

‖Loss of sexual desire; impotence; chronic degeneration of cord.

| |Emissions, with relaxed organs, after wine.

| |Prolonged, painful, spasmodic stricture.

‖Testicles: drawn up; feel constricted; swollen, inflamed and painful.

| |Genitals swollen and inflamed.

| |Prostatorrhœa.

‖Chronic gonorrhœa.

[23] Female Sexual Organs. | |Nymphomania.

‖Wants to stretch limbs during ovarian pains; ovarian dropsy.

| |Cessation of menses on invasion of colic; may reappear after paroxysm, or not again until next period.

| |Spasmodic dysmenorrhœa.

‖Menorrhagia, with a sensation of a string pulling from abdomen to back; during climacteric period dark clots, alternating with fluid blood or bloody serum, with a sensation of fulness in pelvis and bearing-down pains in small of back; skin dry, pale, yellowish; "liver spots" here and there; short of breath on going up stairs; debility; depressed spirits.

‖Vaginismus.

| |Strangulation of prolapsed portion of vagina; intense pain.

| |Leucorrhœa, with inclination to miscarriage.

| |Mucous discharge from vagina.

[24] Pregnancy. Parturition. Lactation. Feeling as if there were not room enough in abdomen, at night in bed; must stretch violently.

| |Pain drawing from abdomen to backbone, as if abdomen were drawn upward by a string; depression of spirits; constipation. θAbortion.

‖She feels a lack of room for fœtus in uterus; inability of uterus to expand; threatening abortion.

Abortion from lead poisoning; or, if born, the child lives but a year or two.

| |Can scarcely pass urine; apparently from want of sensation to do so; the will to do so cannot effect it, as if from paralysis.

| |Puerperal eclampsia, especially with history of epilepsy; albuminuria.

‖Milk scanty and watery, with great emaciation.
‖Pulling, tearing, contractive pains in mammæ, uterus, and vagina, with or without colic; the breasts become momentarily harder, or with the colic they seem smaller.
‖Induration and inflammation of mammæ.

[25] Voice and Larynx. Trachea and Bronchia. ‖Aphonia from paralysis of vocal cords.
Voice diminished both in power and vibration; during paroxysms rough and stuttering speech or voice entirely gone; pants in talking as if out of breath.
Spasmodic closure of rima glottidis; mucus rattling in throat, with sudden difficulty of breathing and asphyxia.
Laryngismus stridulus.
Constriction of larynx.
‖Bronchitis, with copious muco-serous or purulent expectoration; periodical asthmatic paroxysms.

[26] Respiration. Respiration anxious and sighing with lamentations and moaning.
Want of breath; oppression from motion; short breath on going up stairs.
Heavy difficult breathing.
Spasmodic dyspnœa; sudden paroxysms force him up at night to the open window, with paralytic symptoms of laryngeal muscles.

[27] Cough. ‖Cough: short, dry, nervous, fatiguing; dry, spasmodic; < during inspiration; with purulent expectoration; frequent, with bloody expectoration; after hemorrhage from lungs, < lying on back and after getting out of bed in morning; dry, hacking, with tuberculous diathesis; in chlorosis.
Expectoration: copious, muco-purulent or purulent; tasting sweetish; bloody.

[28] Inner Chest and Lungs. ‖Pressure upon chest, with difficulty in breathing and short, dry, nervous cough.
Stitches in chest and sides.
‖Great emaciation: fever with evening exacerbation; night sweats; diarrhœa; good appetite; hectic flush; constant cough, day and night, with profuse greenish, purulent, lumpy, blood-streaked expectoration; dulness on percussion in apex of right lung, with râles. θPhthisis.
‖Hæmoptysis: phthisical disposition, when bloody or purulent sputa alternate.
‖Hæmoptysis, with pus and blood and stitch pains in chest.
‖Phthisis; suppuration of lungs; large vomica in lungs; chronic cough, with bloody expectoration; palpitation.
‖Suppuration of lungs.

‖Beats of heart very tumultuous, rapid and resonant.

Stitch in region of heart during an inspiration, with anxiety, heat and redness of face; rushing of blood in region of heart, during a rapid walk; anguish about heart, cold sweat; violent palpitation and a sort of angina pectoris.

Hypertrophy and dilatation of heart.

Change in muscular structure of heart without coincident disease of valves and with or without atheromatous degeneration of vessels; usually hypertrophy and dilatation of l. ventricle; ten cases out of twenty-five were associated with parenchymatous nephritis in stage of atrophy.

‖Bruit de souffle at base of heart; cat's fremitus at apex.

Pulse: rapid; weak and slow, about 40; variable, generally small and slow, contracted; at times hard and slow; at others small and accelerated; dicrotic or undulating.

[30] Outer Chest. Chronic myalgia.

[31] Neck and Back. Tension in neck extending to ears when moving head.

Pains in back sometimes > by bending forward, at others when bending backward.

Stitches in back and small of back and between shoulder blades.

Pain in back, with sensitiveness of affected spot, by leaning on it; in afternoon > after rubbing.

Chronic spinal meningitis, with sudden loss of flesh; painful contraction of limbs; colic with retracted abdomen.

‖Wasting palsy: local paralysis, chiefly of forearm, with atrophy of muscles and absence of anæsthesia.

Multiple sclerosis: tremor of r. arm during voluntary motion; arms are "shaky" when he attempts to use them; tremor of arms preceded by weakness and numbness; tongue trembles when being protruded or when he tries to articulate; speech dragging and slow; diplopia; dimness of sight; neuritis of optic nerve.

Paralysis: anæsthesia and hyperanæsthesia in spinal diseases.

[32] Upper Limbs. Convulsive motion of arms and hands, with pains in joints.

Debility of arms, with atrophy, loss of sensation and trembling.

Google

Weakness and painful lameness of arms.

‖ Numbness and want of power in extensor muscles of r. forearm, those of thumb and index finger being almost paralyzed; attack commenced eighteen months ago and was attributed to continuous knitting.

‖ Very numerous dilatations of cutaneous veins of forearm, and under surface of lower third of upper arm.

‖ Very numerous moniliform dilatations of veins on forearm, upper arm and back of hand, chiefly corresponding to the points of union of veins.

‖‖ Wrist-drop.

‖ Right hand, wrist and forearm mostly affected by paralysis (parts chiefly exposed to contact with paint).

‖ Trembling of hands.

‖ Knife drops from his hands. θ Constipation.

‖ Paralysis of extensor muscles of fingers of r. hand; severe pains in abdomen; constipation; extraordinary tendency to sweat. θ Lead poisoning.

Wens on hands.

Paronychia; onychia maligna and ingrowing toe nails.

Swollen red spots on fingers.

[35] Lower Limbs. Lacerating pain without redness or swelling in forepart of thighs and knees; < at intervals; decidedly < by movement and scarcely alleviated by pressure.

Violent pains in lower extremities, chiefly in anterior portion of thighs and calves.

Most violent pains, extending from hips to knees, as if pierced with needles.

‖ Feeling of numbness outside of r. leg, from hip to knees, always coming on at night and continuing for an uncertain time, also felt in morning; of late it had increased to actual insensibility, so that he could run a pin into skin without pain; skin and parts below felt hard; frequently came on after walking about room in morning.

Paralytic sensation in hip, knee and foot joints, especially the latter two, the feet are pressed to the floor with difficulty, as if they were made of wood.

‖ Drawing pressing pain in posterior part of thigh along course of sciatic nerve, extending to knee; gait limping, difficult; very tired after walking; after Sulph., pains became periodic, appearing with great severity every other evening and lasting several hours, followed by great weakness of thigh; headache.

‖ Sciatica: drawing pressive pain in course of nerve from posterior part of thigh to knee, especially when the painful space is wider than the nerve track; walking is difficult and exhausting; colic.

Google

‖Sciatica, when there is marked consecutive muscular atrophy; or earlier, then walking causes great exhaustion.

Painfulness of loins, nates, posterior portion of thigh, knee, sole of foot and toes; pain is equally severe on both sides and is felt somewhat on inner surface of lower limb; usually consisting of prickings or lancinations, with occasional attacks of cramps.

From time to time very sharp neuralgic pains, always seated in lower limbs, though not limited to the joints or to any particular spot.

Extremely acute and paroxysmal pains, as well as cramps, in lower limbs.

Pains in lower limbs < in paroxysms.

‖Lightning-like pains in lower limbs.

‖Lame feeling in legs.

‖Paralysis with atrophy of legs after parturition; loss of motion and sensation; coldness of affected parts; impossible to stand; involuntary stool and urination.

Pains in legs, especially at night.

‖‖Enlarged veins on calves, with numerous varicose dilatations.

‖‖Cramps in calves.

Swelling of feet.

‖Fetid foot sweat; fetid sweat on soles; sweat smelling like old cheese.

‖‖Intense pain in great toe at night, which nothing relieves.

Ingrowing toe nails.

31 Limbs in General. Violent pains in extremities, beginning in fingers, extending through elbows and upper arms; then beginning in feet and finally affecting whole body.

‖Pains in extremities, especially in evening and night.

‖Neuralgic pains in limbs.

‖Pains in limbs < in paroxysms, so severe that he cries out; somewhat > by pressure; < from motion.

‖Vague wandering pains in limbs.

Lancinating pains all along inner surface of upper and lower limbs; sometimes cramps; at times these neuralgic pains cause as great suffering as the colicky paroxysms.

‖The pains in limbs are < at night and are > by rubbing; < from pressure but > from friction; during pain desires to extend upper and lower extremities.

The l. side twitches, tingles and then "goes to sleep."

‖Alternate jerks of flexors and extensors.

‖‖Jerking, trembling or numbness of limbs.

Not a loss of power, but uncertain, irregular motions of limbs during height of pains, ceasing when pains stop.
Paralysis of limbs.
Paralytic weakness of extremities, especially on r. side; hands and feet cold; total want of sweat.
Paralysis of extensor muscles of fingers and toes, both sides, after injections of morphine for rheumatic pains.
Paralysis: of wrist or arms; first cramp, then loss of sensation and sudden emaciation, with coldness of parts; feet are shortened; extensors most affected; preceded by trembling colic, apoplexy or spasms; the paralyzed parts may swell after the emaciation.
Paroxysms of paralysis.

[35] Rest. Position. Motion. Rest: constriction behind glans penis >.
Lying down: pressure in epigastrium >; difficulty of breathing; all symptoms better.
Lying on r. ride: impossible, swelling in abdomen; brings on cough.
Lying on l. side: violent palpitation worse.
Lying on back: brings on cough; feels as if fluid rolled from one side of chest to the other; cough worse.
Stooping: vertigo.
Bending forward: pressure in stomach; pains in back better.
Bending backward: pressure in stomach >; pain in epigastrium >; pains in back better.
Bending double: > colic.
Leaning on back: sensitiveness.
Inclination to take strange attitudes and positions in bed.
Wants to stretch limbs: during ovarian pains.
Rising in morning: terrible pains in stomach.
Motion: pain in epigastrium <; pain in abdomen <; cæcum and ascending colon <; constriction behind glans penis <; of head, tension in neck and ears; pain in thighs >.
Walking about room: numbness of leg; very tired.
Going up stairs: shortness of breath.
Rapid walk: rushing of blood in region of heart.
Active exercise: does not perspire; coldness.

[36] Nerves. Anæsthesia or excessive hyperæsthesia.
Diminished sensibility on whole r. side of body.
Lassitude; faintness; faints on going into a room full of company.
General debility; great prostration.
Restlessness and uneasiness.
Spasms: clonic; tonic; convulsive movements of limbs; from cerebral sclerosis or tumor; epileptic; epileptiform.

‖Lumbago from a strain or a cold.

[31] Neck and Back. ‖Ulceration of cervical glands, which discharged a very offensive, dark-colored pus; dark red areola around ulcers.

[33] Upper Limbs. Paralytic drawing in r. arm, especially in wrist, extending to tips of fingers.

‖Synovial swelling on wrist joint, of nine months' growth, large as a walnut, dark-colored, so as to look like a suppurating tumor; on holding to light it appeared translucent; not much pain.

[33] Lower Limbs. Paralyzed and bruised sensation in legs.

Paralytic drawing, with pains in bones of l. leg.

Great weakness of knees and ankles; they ache constantly.

‖Chronic rheumatism; pain centred in heel; is lame, walks with two sticks; great pain on first putting foot down to stand upon it; shooting pain in bone and sore pain in ball of foot; foot œdematous.

[34] Limbs in General. Trembling of limbs with twitching of muscles.

[35] Rest. Position. Motion. Stooping: frontal headache <.

When first putting down foot to stand upon it: great pain.

Walking: frontal headache <.

[36] Nerves. ‖Great restlessness.

‖Lassitude; very weak and languid; stretching.

[37] Sleep. Many dreams during sleep.

[38] Time. Aggravation of all symptoms in morning after waking.

4 A.M.: large watery stools with pain <.

Morning: pain in bowels <.

Evening: vertigo <.

[39] Temperature and Weather. Warm room: chills.

[40] Fever. Chills: over whole body; run up back even when warm and in a warm room.

Intermittent without sweat.

‖Typhus and typhoid fevers.

[41] Attacks, Periodicity. Intense itching periodically; returning every hour or two.

For more than two weeks: harsh, dry cough.

For nine months: a synovial swelling on wrist joint.

Every year: several attacks of sore mouth, burning of mucous membrane.

[42] Locality and Direction. Right: side of face much swollen, especially under eye; paralytic drawing in arm; erythema nodosum below knee.

Left: itching and burning of cheek; pains in bones of leg; erythema nodosum on leg.

[43] Sensations. As if mouth and throat had been scalded.

Pain: in bowels; in larynx; in bones of l. leg; in ankles, wrists and elbows.

in throat; cough excited by tickling or irritation behind sternum; cough attended with pain in head; sudden change of voice at same hour on consecutive days; change of voice at different times.

Hawking of mucus from upper part of larynx and throat; with burning soreness; extending later to l. bronchus; renewed by a stronger exhalation or scraping.

‖ Hawking of mucus from larynx, with burning soreness; voice hoarse, especially in evening; tickling in throat; coughing < by pressure on larynx; forced, barking cough, with soreness of larynx and chest.

‖ Tickling in throat pit causing cough.

Violent irritation to cough in larynx while eating.

Pain in larynx: while eating; in top of larynx; mostly on l. side; with excoriating cough.

‖ Raw sensation in larynx, when coughing.

‖ Acute catarrhal affections of larynx, trachea and bronchi; dry, frequent, continuous cough, in long paroxysms, or, under certain circumstances, almost uninterrupted, and out of proportion to degree of organic affection of mucous membrane; induced, or greatly < by any irregularity of respiration, such as a little deeper or more rapid inspiration than usual, by inspiration of air a little colder than that previously inhaled, by irregularity of respiration and irregular motions of larynx and trachea, such as are involved in the act of speech, and by external pressure upon trachea in region of suprasternal fossa; great irritability of mucous membrane of larynx and trachea; rawness and soreness in trachea, extending a short distance below suprasternal fossa and laterally into bronchi, chiefly l.; tickling in suprasternal fossa and behind sternum provokes cough; this tickling is very annoying and persistent and is often, but momentarily, and sometimes only partially, > by coughing; cough occurs chiefly, or is much < in evening after retiring, and at that time the membrane of trachea is particularly sensitive to cold air and to any irregularity in the flow of air over its surface, so that patient often covers head with bedclothes to avoid the cold air and refuses to speak or even listen to conversation, lest his attention should be withdrawn from the supervision of his respiratory acts, which he performs with the most careful uniformity and deliberation.

‖ Has not been able to speak above a whisper for nearly three months; soreness in throat < during empty deglutition, but is not < by swallowing food; posterior surface of pharynx irritated and in places excoriated, edges of soft palate and uvula red and swollen, and covered with an eruption of minute red pimples; slight hacking cough, produced by tickling in larynx and upper part of trachea; after taking cold.

Respiration. Frequent feeling as if she could not get another breath.

Sensation of breathlessness, as if air did not penetrate chest, or like what is felt when falling or passing very rapidly through air.

Breathing causes soreness behind sternum.

‖Rattling in windpipe; frequent feeling as if she could not get another breath (compare Apis), coughing spells several times a day, lasting one and a half hours at a time and originating in a sense of great accumulation of tough mucus in chest, with increased dyspnœa and desire to cough it up, causing a general hot sweat half an hour before spell (increasing during it); cough very hard, with feeling of suffocation, reaching to epigastrium, as if tough phlegm must work up; severe soreness behind whole sternum, spreading to each side; constant but < during cough; much tough mucus is brought up during spell; during its continuance feels like killing herself in despair; afterward prostrate and tearful. θAsthma.

‖Asthma of consumptives; aggravation 2 A.M.

Cough. ‖Hoarse, barking cough; in attacks, every night at 11 P.M., and at 2 and 5 A.M. (children).

‖Cough, with pain behind mid-sternum.

‖‖Dry, incessant, fatiguing cough, caused by tickling in throat pit, extending to behind sternum and to stomach; soreness in larynx and behind sternum; rawness under clavicles; pain in stomach; stitches in l. lung; cough < from changing rooms, evening after lying down, touching or pressing throat pit, from slightest inhalation of cool air, covers head with bedclothes to make air warmer.

‖Hawking with burning soreness in larynx; later in l. bronchus, renewed by strong exhalation and scraping.

Dry spasmodic cough, simulating early stage of whooping cough, at first dry, coming on in paroxysms preceded by tickling in throat pit, attended by congestion and slight pain in head and wrenching pains in r. side of chest; the most violent paroxysm began a few moments after lying down at night, usually at about 11 o'clock; this paroxysm lasted ten or fifteen minutes, after which he slept all night; a less severe paroxysm occurred in bed, in morning after waking, and at various times through day; after two weeks, expectoration of ad-

Hacking cough.

Pressure on throat causes cough.

Cough as soon as he turns on l. side.

The most violent cough occurs a few moments after lying down and at night; in some cases complete aphonia.

Severe cough, provoked by pressure on trachea, deep inspirations, inhalation of cold air and talking; cough severe, explosive and continuous, hurts the head, accompanied by involuntary micturition; < latter part of night.

Dry, tickling, spasmodic, cough, with tenderness in larynx and trachea, rendering cough quite painful.

Teasing, persistent cough, < in cool air, or by anything which increases the volume or rapidity of inspired air.

Dry, hacking, incessant, very fatiguing cough, excited by tickling in suprasternal fossa, extending downward to middle of sternum, with a sensation as if a feather were swaying to and fro in bronchi with respiration, causing a tickling which provokes cough.

Cough begins with tickling behind top of sternum and sometimes in paroxysms of five to ten minutes duration; trachea sore to outward pressure, feels excoriated through its whole extent, as do also the whole fauces; cough excited by pressure on throat pit; cough is violent with scanty, difficult expectoration, shocks head and chest, head as if it would fly into pieces and he feels as if he might raise blood any minute; greatly exhausted after the paroxysms of coughing; head aches during cough.

Dry cough; tickling in throat pit; continued desire to cough on breathing cold air, < after retiring to bed; obliged to cover mouth with bedclothes and use every effort to prevent coughing; occasional pains through both lungs extending up into trachea; feels weak and exhausted in morning; very frequently a rawness in throat in morning.

Is very nervous; confusion of head; hoarseness in evenings; cough; excoriation behind whole of sternum on coughing and on inspiration; coldness of fingers.

Cough originally produced by inhalation of extremely cold air during Winter; cough < lying down, and especially at 11 o'clock at night; excited by tickling behind sternum and attended by a sprainlike aching near sternum and with accumulation of mucus in fauces near posterior nares.

Cough about 11 P.M. when lying on l. side; awoke between 1 and 2 A.M. with cough in any position; it made the chest feel bruised and seemed as if it did not reach low enough down to raise the phlegm, and when it did loosen it, it caused soreness of chest; after catching cold from exposure to cold early morning air.

Severe cold for several days; pulse quick, not hard, 110, skin moderately hot and dry, face somewhat flushed; respiration embarrassed not so much by any constriction of chest as by violent and long-continued cough, which follows any attempt to make a full inspiration; physical examination of chest reveals nothing abnormal; roughness and soreness in lower part of trachea and behind upper third of sternum much more perceptible when she coughs; cough dry, slightly hoarse, very violent and fatiguing; it is provoked by a tickling in suprasternal fossa, is induced by pressure upon trachea in that region and especially by talking and by deep inspiration or by inspiration of cool air; this irritability of trachea increases very markedly after 7 P.M., so that she suffers exceedingly from the constant tickling and violent cough; she can prevent it only by respiring with great caution and deliberation, by avoiding all distractions of speech and conversation, and finally she draws bedclothes over head in order to avoid inhaling cool air of chamber.

Severe dry cough at times for several years; cough < in evening; unable to breathe the cold air of his bedroom and has a severe coughing spell in morning on rising and at times during day, especially on taking a deep inspiration; is thin and rather emaciated; has frequent night sweats; tickling in throat and at top of sternum; after coughing some time, rawness in throat of a very disagreeable character, extending from pharynx down beneath upper portion of sternum, accompanied by a burning sensation through upper lobes of both lungs (clavicular region), with loss of appetite and considerable prostration, on examination no indication of presence of tubercles.

Contracted cold in head, throat and lungs; cough hard, dry and explosive, provoked by tickling in throat, talking, deep inspiration, inhaling cold air, < in lying; hurts the head and is accompanied by involuntary micturition.

Contracted cold; cough dry, hoarse, barking, sounding like croup, accompanied by fever.

Constant dry, barking, spasmodic cough. θChronic pneumonia.
